Market Overview

Walla Walla is a city in southeastern Washington state, known for its historic charm, agriculture and wine industry. The city has experienced growth in recent years, with a focus on tourism and the wine industry. The Walla Walla valley is best known for its high-quality wine production, attracting tourists and wine enthusiasts from around the world. The wineries situated in Walla Walla are projected to contribute in excess of $100 million in annual revenue to the region. Visitors to the area often engage in shopping, dining and other retail-related activities. The sustained growth of the tourism sector, coupled with an expanding local population, presents opportunities for retail expansion, encompassing establishments in the food and beverage sector, boutique shops and artisanal businesses.

Walla Walla has a population of around 32,000 people as of 2020. The city has a diverse age distribution with a mix of young adults, families and retirees. The presence of Whitman College and Walla Walla Community College contributes to the city's educational diversity and a significant portion of the population has attained higher education. The city has made investments in infrastructure and beautification projects, enhancing the overall appeal of the commercial areas. This is expected to further drive demand for commercial real estate with over 650 housing units either under construction or approved.
