THE ARCTIC CLUB HOTEL

was formed in 1907 by successful veterans of the Klondike Gold Rush. As the story goes, the building is associated with one of the most overlooked facets to come out of the 1896 Gold Rush - the formation of a social institution for the many men who returned to Seattle after "striking it rich". Hence, the introduction of this "social club" in Seattle. For many, this provided a space for businessmen with Gold Rush or Alaska connections; and for others, it became a social gathering place in downtown Seattle for men, women and even prominent figures throughout history.
