LOCATION

As arguably the oldest neighborhood in Seattle, Georgetown has been creating history since the very beginning, but certainly "Georgetown" firmly established its presence on the map in the 1990's and early 2000s with Industrial Coffee, Stellar Pizza and live music performances drawing crowds of folks from all over the city. Since that time, multiple bars, entertainment venues, a web design company, bakery, and even a circus school have established the community as a thriving cultural destination fostering its original character and history. Today Georgetown offers an abundance of breweries, eateries, shops, art and a growing work force. Located just ten minutes from downtown Seattle, and five minutes from King County Airport, Georgetown is definitely a destination hotspot.
