MARKET OVERVIEW

The Seattle MSA enjoys one of the most innovative and diverse economies in the country. Driven by a mix of wellestablished industrial and manufacturing companies like Boeing and Weyerhaeuser and new economy high-tech companies like Microsoft and Amazon, Seattle has become a magnet for the country's most talented and skilled workforce with expertise in aerospace, software engineering, life sciences and healthcare, cleantech, and information and communication technologies (ICT).

Seattle's Boeing Commercial Airplanes accounts for over 42% of all commercial aircraft currently flying across the globe. More than 90% of Boeing jets are built in Greater Seattle and there are more than 800 aerospace companies in the region. Together these aerospace companies employ 17% of all aerospace workers in the U.S.

Companies like Microsoft, Amazon and Tableau have made the Seattle metro area a world leader in cloud computing and data visualization. With more than 3,000 high tech and ICT companies in the metro area, Seattle is a leading center for information and communications technology, clean technology, and software development.

The Puget Sound region has long been a center for the life sciences and healthcare industries. Scientists from the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center developed bone marrow transplantation. A collaboration of local talent from healthcare and aerospace created software solutions to create astronaut life support systems. As the life sciences industry is now moving to incorporate more software and IT processes in the R&D and supply chain processes, the depth of tech talent and expertise in Seattle is a huge bonus that has been attracting life sciences companies to the region.

The Seattle metro area is also a national leader in the global economy. Located midway between Asia and Europe by air and next door to Canada, Greater Seattle's location couldn't be more ideal. Linked by road, rail, ship and air to global distribution networks, the city has grown to take on international economic importance. The region excels as a global logistics & trading hub, boasting the third largest container shipping center in North America with the Northwest Seaport Alliance. The region is also home to four foreign trade zones and the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport (SEATAC), a major international airport. With over 40% of jobs in the region tied to international trade and business, Greater Seattle is the one of the most internationally connected regions in the United States.

EMPLOYMENT

The Puget Sound region of Washington has a very strong economy and job market. The area has roughly 2.14 million jobs and 128,041 employers. The region is filled with worldclass employers ranging from large tech firms to top health care facilities, and renowned manufacturing and distribution hubs. Puget Sound is home to 160k+ manufacturing jobs and 185k+ tech jobs. The tech industry in the region reported job growth of 35.4% since 2016. The Seattle-Tacoma-Bellevue MSA is the largest metro area in the state of Washington, the fifth largest metro in the West, and 15th largest in the U.S. As of August 2022, the Seattle-Tacoma-Bellevue MSA has a low unemployment rate of 3.5%.

According to U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Seattle Metro area has added 87,200 jobs since September 2021. This accounts for a 4.9% increase year-over-year. Employment in the region has almost caught up with the pre-pandemic employment levels, proving the strength of this region's economy.
