BURIEN & WHITE CENTER

Burien is a young, diverse city built from homesteads around Lake Burien and a summer waterfront community on the Puget Sound. With six miles of shoreline and expansive mountain views, the community offers a high quality of life where residents can access acres of public parks, trails, and a restored beach. Housing includes starter homes to high-end homes, condominiums and apartments of all sizes. Burien is the third most walkable city in Washington state. The Beverly Park neighborhood, along with Boulevard Park and Southern Heights, is among the most culturally diverse neighborhoods in Burien, influenced by more recent waves of migration and immigration.

In 1919, a group of Seattle businessmen organized to build the Rainier Golf and Country Club. A few years later, members of the Seattle Jewish community, excluded from Rainier, built their own golf course next door, now known as Glen Acres Golf and Country Club. The early years of The Boeing Company brought an influx of professionals who built stately homes in this neighborhood.

Burien is conveniently located as a central hub. Driving north to Seattle can be accessed in about 12 minutes, east to Sea-Tac Airport in five minutes, and south to Tacoma or east to Bellevue in about 30 minutes. The Burien Transit Center offers public transit connections to across the region, including the Rapid Ride F bus line. This central location combined with transit options allow for convenient access to jobs and entertainment.

Downtown Burien's major arterial boasts wide sidewalks, benches, landscaping and old-fashioned lampposts. Town Square is home to the King County Regional Library and Burien City Hall, as well as a weekly farmers market. Olde Burien, the historic town center, bustles with new boutiques, businesses and restaurants.

White Center is an unincorporated King County neighborhood on the south edge of West Seattle, is a multicultural hub that tells the story of immigrants and refugees who joined local blue-collar workers in the search for affordable housing and a place to call home.

The neighborhood sprung from logged lands and small farms of European settlers. As industrial operations were established along the Duwamish River during the first half of the 20th century, farmers subdivided their land and made way for housing developments, especially during the 1940s and post-World War II. Federal housing projects were built for immigrants and working-class families who came to the area as wartime workers. Once the war ended, many were able to purchase property cementing White Center's multilingual multicultural identity.
