Sammamish, Washington, is a suburban city located on a scenic plateau east of Lake Sammamish, nestled between Redmond and Issaquah in King County. Known for its natural beauty, top-rated schools, and family-friendly atmosphere, Sammamish has grown rapidly since its incorporation in 1999. With a population of around 68,000, it consistently ranks among the best places to live in the U.S., thanks to its high median household income, low crime rates, and excellent quality of life.

Sammamish offers a high quality of life through its abundant green spaces, parks, and trails that support recreation, wellness, and a strong connection to nature. The city is also investing in community infrastructure—such as walkable retail areas, civic spaces, and a developing Town Center—to enhance convenience, social engagement, and local services. Combined with excellent schools, a safe environment, and a strong focus on environmental preservation, these amenities make Sammamish an ideal place for families and outdoor enthusiasts alike.
