ASSET SUMMARY

The Titlow Beach Townhomes present a rare coastal investment opportunity consisting of two adjacent six-unit buildings totaling twelve residences. Constructed in 1979 and 1983, the property reflects strong pride of ownership with consistent maintenance, thoughtful upgrades, and modernized interior finishes. Each residence features a spacious two-bedroom, one-and-a-half-bath townhome layout of approximately 1,050 square feet, complemented by private entryways, in-unit laundry, fireplaces, dishwashers, and exclusive backyard or patio spaces. A distinguishing feature of the asset is its structure of six individual condominium tax parcels, creating unique flexibility and the potential for a phased or condo-by-condo disposition strategy that can enhance liquidity and value realization.

Positioned along Tacoma's waterfront corridor, the property offers strong connectivity to employment centers, education, and regional transportation. Residents benefit from direct access to Pierce Transit Route 1, providing frequent service along the Sixth Avenue corridor, and are within approximately a 12-minute drive of the TCC Transit Center. Tacoma Community College is located roughly two miles away, reinforcing consistent rental demand from students and faculty. The location provides convenient access to State Route 16 and the Tacoma Narrows Bridge, supporting efficient commutes across the South Sound, while the planned T-Line extension to Tacoma Community College further strengthens long-term transit accessibility. Nearby neighborhood retail and everyday shopping amenities add to the property's practical livability.

Lifestyle appeal is a defining component of the investment narrative. The community sits adjacent to Titlow Park, a 75-acre regional destination offering shoreline access, forested trails, and year-round recreation. Residents enjoy walkable proximity to Boathouse 19, Titlow Lodge's historic Swiss-style event venue, and expansive coastal walking paths. Immediate access to the Puget Sound shoreline enables kayaking, paddleboarding, and beach recreation, while nearby Narrows Marina supports boating and broader maritime activity. Seasonal programming, playgrounds, and open green space reinforce the neighborhood's strong residential character, positioning the property as a compelling blend of stable workforce housing and lifestyle-driven coastal living.

INCOME

Market Rents	Current rents reflect the in-place rent roll. Pro forma rents are supported by comparable properties and reflect light to medium interior renovations depending on each unit's current condition.
Utility Bill Back	Current utility bill back reflects $135 per month for three units and $95 per month for one unit. Pro forma assumes an average of $110 per unit per month based on stabilized utility recovery.
Pet Rent Income	Current pet rent reflects $50 per month for one unit. Pro forma assumes continued pet rent income based on existing tenancy.
Other Income	Current other income reflects trailing 12-month receipts, including application fees, damage fees, non-refundable fees, and other charges. Pro forma assumes a 3% escalation.

EXPENSES

Property Taxes	Current on 2026 total billed amount. Pro forma property taxes are derived by applying the 2026 millage rate to an estimated assessed value equal to 85% of the offering price, reflecting a typical post-sale reassessment basis.
Insurance	Current insurance expense reflects the in-place monthly premium. Pro forma insurance is based on a recent third-party insurance indication.
Utilities (W/S/G/E)	Current reflects trailing 12-month W/S/G/E expenses. Pro forma assumes a 3% escalation.
Repairs & Maintenance	Current reflects trailing 12-month repair expenses across major categories. Pro forma is normalized to $750 per unit based on property-specific assumptions and recent third-party management budgets for comparable assets.
Marketing	Current reflects trailing 12-month marketing expenses. Pro forma is normalized to $75 per unit per month, consistent with recent third-party management budgets for comparable assets.
Payroll	Current and pro forma are normalized to $60 per unit per month, reflecting market-based third-party management costs and recent management budget assumptions.
Property Management	Current reflects trailing 12-month management fee expenses. Pro forma is normalized to 5% of effective gross income, reflecting market-based third-party management fee structures and recent management budget assumptions.
Reserves	Current and pro forma adjusted to underwriting standard $250/unit
Admin / Miscellaneous	Current reflects trailing 12-month admin/miscellaneous expenses. Pro forma is normalized to $200 per unit.
Grounds	Current and pro forma are normalized to $2,500 based on property-specific recent management budget assumptions.

LOCATION

TACOMA / UNIVERSITY PLACE

Tacoma and University Place are strategically positioned within the southern Puget Sound region, approximately 35 miles south of Seattle, offering both connectivity to a major global metro and a distinct local identity. Tacoma emerged in the late 19th century as a key rail terminus and port city, with the Port of Tacoma anchoring its long-standing role in trade and logistics. Over time, Tacoma has evolved from a primarily industrial base into a diversified economy supported by healthcare, education, and professional services. Adjacent University Place, incorporated in 1995, developed as a suburban residential community and today serves as one of the most desirable neighborhoods in Pierce County.

The combined market benefits from a growing and diverse population base. Tacoma, with over 225,000 residents, is one of Washington's largest cities and offers a relatively young, workforce-driven demographic with increasing in-migration from higher-cost areas. University Place complements this with a smaller but more affluent population of approximately 35,000 residents, characterized by higher median household incomes and a slightly older, more established demographic profile. Together, the two communities create a balanced demand base supporting both rental and for-sale housing, as well as neighborhood-serving retail and services.

Economically, the region is anchored by a diverse mix of employment drivers that provide both stability and growth potential. Key sectors include logistics and trade tied to the Port of Tacoma, healthcare and education institutions, and the significant presence of Joint Base Lewis-McChord, one of the largest military bases in the United States. Additionally, the area functions as part of the broader Puget Sound commuter network, with a meaningful portion of residents traveling to Seattle and surrounding job centers, reinforcing demand for housing and local commercial services.

From a real estate perspective, Tacoma offers a wide range of housing product, from historic single-family homes to expanding multifamily and mixed-use developments, particularly in its revitalizing downtown core. The city has become increasingly attractive due to its relative affordability and ongoing urban reinvestment. In contrast, University Place is predominantly composed of single-family residential neighborhoods with high homeownership rates, strong schools, and limited new supply, supporting long-term value stability and consistent demand from families and professionals.

Culturally and in terms of livability, Tacoma and University Place provide complementary environments. Tacoma delivers an authentic, evolving urban experience with a growing arts scene, adaptive reuse projects, and a "gritty-meets-creative" character that appeals to younger residents and entrepreneurs. University Place offers a quieter, suburban lifestyle with access to waterfront amenities such as Chambers Bay, well-maintained parks, and highly regarded schools. Together, the two submarkets create a cohesive and attractive regional profile, combining urban energy with suburban stability, an increasingly sought-after dynamic within the Puget Sound region.
